
Live Design Discourse

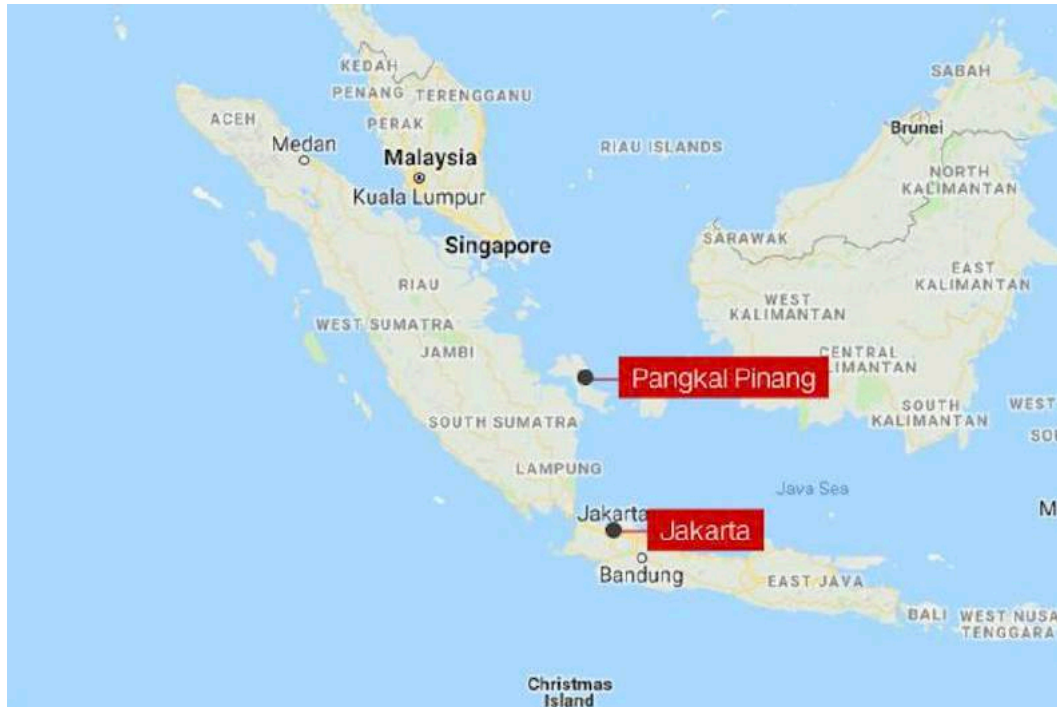

Indonesia

Pangkalpinang, April 10th - 13th 2019

Introduction

Pangkalpinang is the capital city of Bangka Belitung province in the western part of Indonesia. It is famous for its natural beauty. Pangkalpinang also have the beauty of the beach and its culinary delights. Thus, in the global level, Bangka island is famous as the largest tin mining production. Both conventional and modern mining has been present in this island.

Pangkalpinang from Jakarta

This time, the Live Design Discourse (LDD) and Four Nations Meeting will be held on this beautiful island. The agenda of LDD is short design workshop among four countries. Students will be asked to complete a case given by the committee. Students from the four nations will be guided by four young architects from the four nations. The result of this LDD will offer suggestions for stakeholders to develop their city.

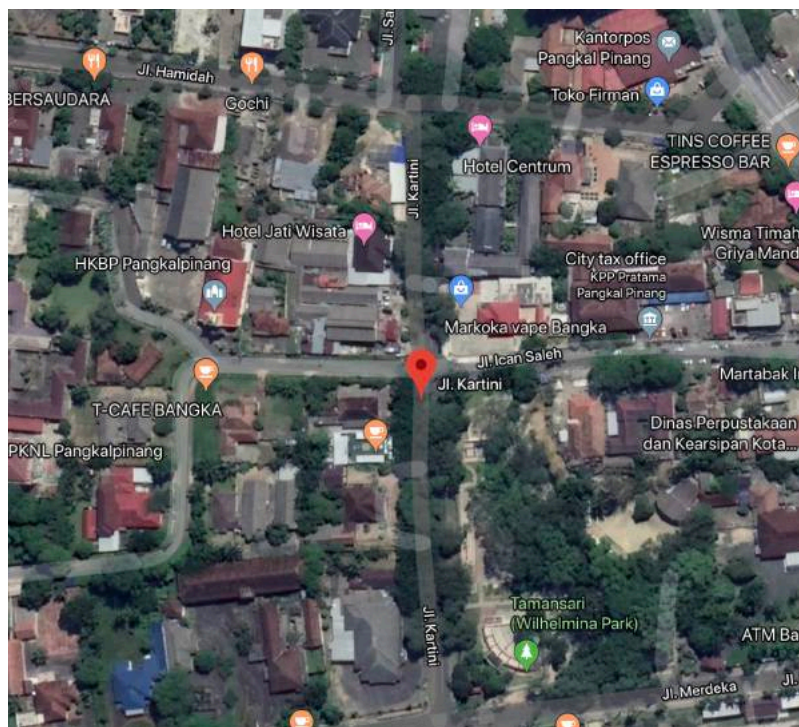

Case Study

Historically, Pangkalpinang was known as a tin-producing city. The largest companies in tin management is PT. Timah. PT. Timah plans to make a pedestrian path with the theme of a historical road. They asked the students involved in the LDD workshop to give design suggestions of a comfortable, aesthetic and historical pedestrian way, and also to create community space that encourage people to communicate each other.

For this reason, the students should be respond the context of Pangkalpinang, specifically to to respond local history and community.then they should understand and encourage contextual design suggestions.

Along the workshop, there will be held some lectures from some local architects. One of them is ar. Yori Antar. He is a prominent Indonesian architect who concern locality and vernacular architecture for his design.

The result of the workshop, the students will deliver a pecha-kucha presentation (20x20) that explain their design and recommendation on the study case. The presentation will be attended by Presidents of IAI, ASA, PAM, and SIA. Along with the presidents, representatives from PT. Timah and local stakeholders will attend the presentations.
