Architects worldwide are building on an important trend: Large-scale glass that can inspire people, foster greater connection between the inside and outdoors, and maximize available light. Join us to explore how large-scale glass is transforming the urban landscape. This is an opportunity to discuss how technological demands and considerations are involved in large and complex designs. In addition to the aesthetic opportunities that large-scale glass offers, you'll discover the energy-saving possibilities of advanced coated glass available in bold new sizes. Come away inspired by the glass capabilities newly possible on a large scale-and the exciting trends that are emerging as a result.
