DESCRIPTION

Confused about low-emitting material credit? Paints and other coating materials contribute significantly to a design project not only in aesthetic value, but also in compliance and sustainability measures. Join us to walk through the two options for paint and coatings. You'll learn how a color's light reflectance value (LRV) can reduce your reliance on artificial light. You'll also get an overview of the heat island credit and learn about the types of certifications required for building product disclosure and optimization credits.
