DESCRIPTION

Not all residences come with their own yard and picket fence. From lifestyle community complexes, campus dormitories and downtown high-rises, many residential projects must address entry and exit for multiple tenants. How do you integrate an access strategy that allows all tenants to come and go freely, safely, and without complication? Come to this session to explore tools for developing an effective, scalable access strategy for multiple-occupant residential buildings. You'll explore property security, space adaptability, and the latest trends in individual access control.
